

A president's story

BY AKKER

I like the Presidents. They help people.
Sometimes they make houses and food.

They also put signs up to tell people to stop if they are not listening.

The signs are everywhere in the United States. Making all the signs keeps the President really busy.

The President uses a lot of metal. Some signs are different colors and some are the same. Some are triangles, pentagons and hexagons. Some are circles. Some are squares.

There are 36 Presidents right now and there will be more when people grow up. They work very hard to help people in the United states of America.
