

The Name Changer

Once, there was someone named Sam, who could travel back in time! When he went back, he chose a subject that helped him decide which name of towns to change. This time, it was places he grew up. His first stop was Melonton, ~~2222 BC~~ 2222 BC. When he got there, he saw a man drowning! He quick pulled the Man in shore, the man told everyone how he was rescued, and soon the town was renamed Pullman.

His next stop was Punckepunk, 1802. When he got there, he started looking for merchants. When he finally found one, he got a small, red apple, & the merchant said it would just miss history by 0.002 miles. ~~So~~ The next day, the mayor was going to a meeting. Sam snuck in through the airvent and through the Mine-Apple at the Mayor's shoelace! When Sam went back to normal time, Punckepunk had been renamed Mineapolicia.

NEXT, Sam went to Ellowear, 209 BC. There was a tornado heading there, so he took cover in a nearby barn. The next day, there was a Tsunami that washed everything away! The day after that there was a landslide that covered everything under dirt. After that, everyone started finding big, deep holes in the ground, and Sam chose to jump into one. At the bottom, he found hamburgers! They were called burgs back then. Since he found the first burg in a pit, the city was renamed "Pitzburg" in honor of him. Then Sam came back home.

Sam's final stop today was Bruinter, SO6 BC. This place was going to change, he said to himself. So, he got himself an alias. Bisner Mark was what everyone knew him by. He became a famous genius, and since he lived in Bruinter, they shortened and combined his first and last names. Now, Bruinter is the town we now know as Bismark. But instead of coming back, Sam settled Grewold, and died peacefully in his sleep. Today, everyone remembers him by his alias, Bisner Mark.
