Once upon a time, there was a 3rd grade class that went on a field trip to the San Diego Zoo. They looked at all the aquarium animals and then they went outside to see all the other animals. There were giraffes, elephants, rhinos, kangaroos, gorillas, big apes, tigers, lions, black panthers, cheetahs and monkeys.

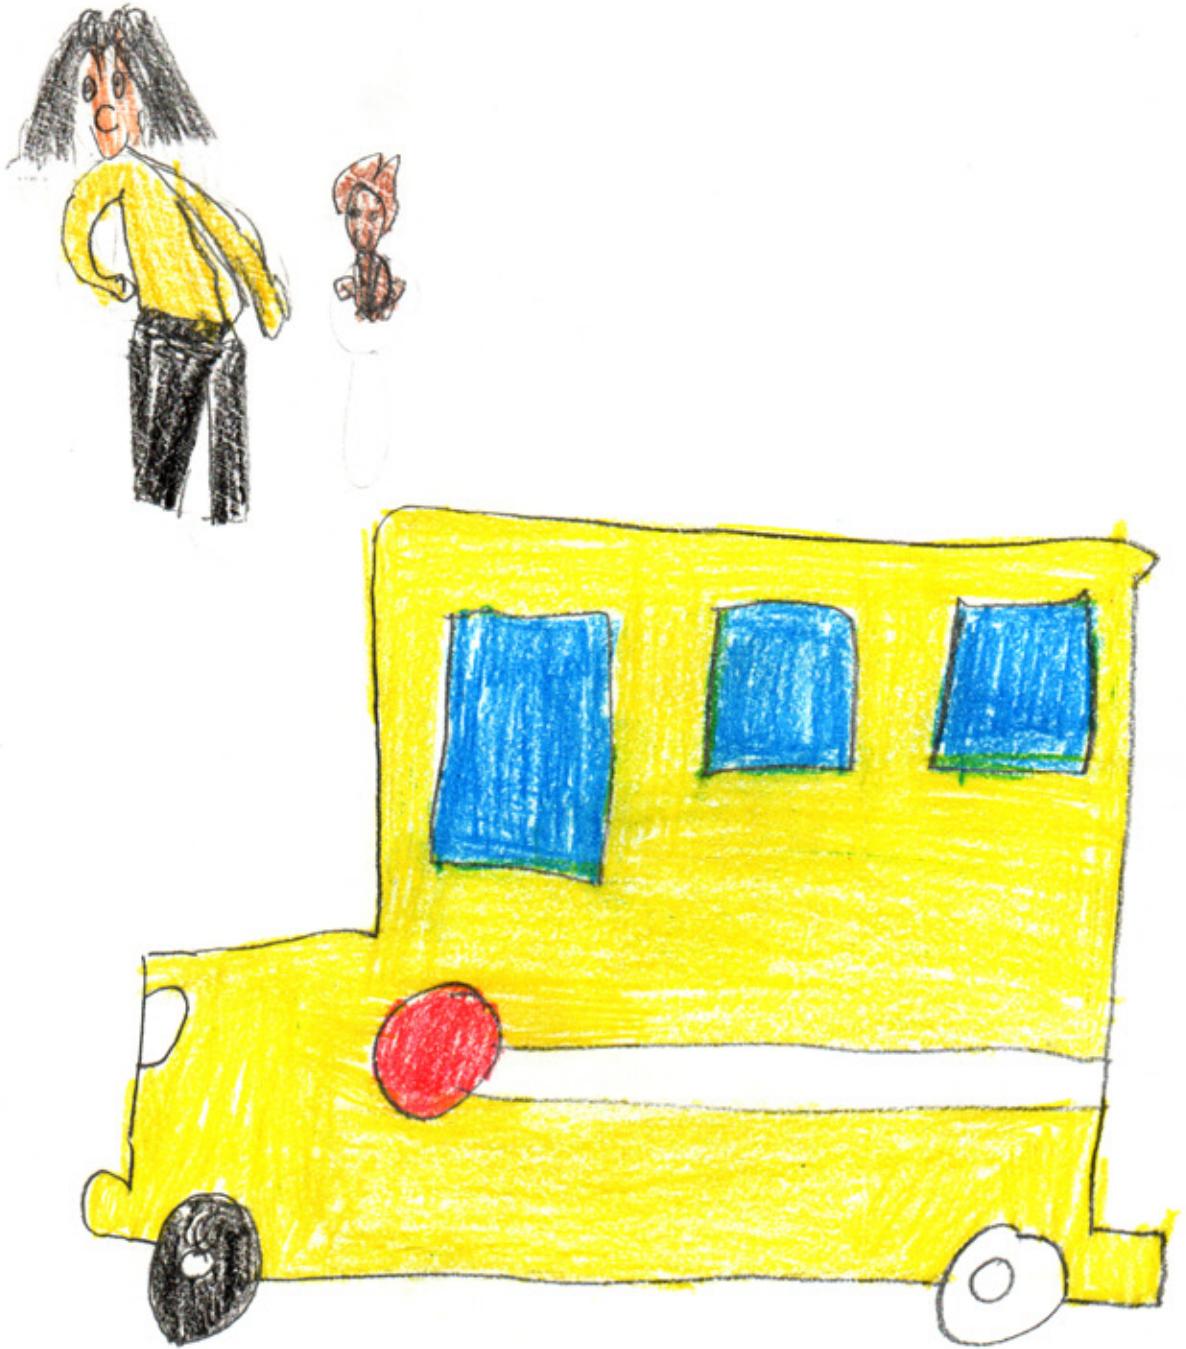

Then, all the monkeys got out! There were a thousand monkeys! There were babies, moms, and dads. There were a ton of them! Suddenly, a magical door to the jungle appeared. The monkeys entered and got lost could not find their way out.

The class went to find all the monkeys. They followed the monkey's tracks and ended up in the jungle. They split up so they could find all the monkeys quicker. They found all the one thousand monkeys!

Finally, the class took one of the monkeys named Hadley to their school and she became their class pet. She went to the school and she LOVED it! They played games, played with toys, and everything else.

As a reward, each student took Hadley home for a weekend. The rest of the school year was great and they lived happily ever after.
