

The Secret Adventure

Written and Illustrated
By: Harper Hamatsch

George the monkey, Liam the lion, Teddy the giraffe, and Lily the elephant were hanging out together. All of a sudden, George heard a strange sound. He told everybody, but none of them knew what it was. Lily had an idea to go check out the noise, but it was too dark, and they had to go home.

The next day, they all met up again, and once the zoo was closed, they went to get armor just in case it was something dangerous.

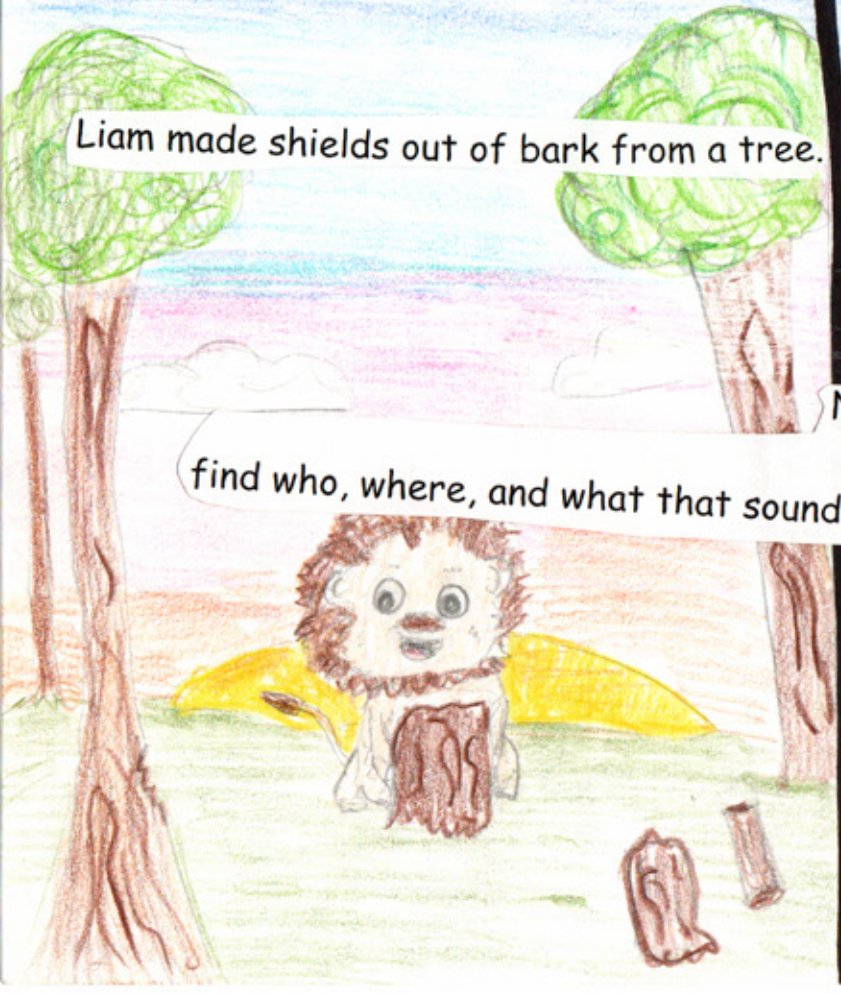

George got bananas for fuel.

Teddy got a rope.

Liam made shields out of bark from a tree.

Lily filled up lily pads with water to act as water balloons.

Now they were ready for the adventure to find who, where, and what that sound was.

They started to venture toward where they had heard the noise. While they were walking to the entrance of the zoo, Liam noticed a trailer. Everyone else didn't notice, so they kept walking. Finally, once they got far ahead of the trailer, Liam yelled, "Guys, I found something!"

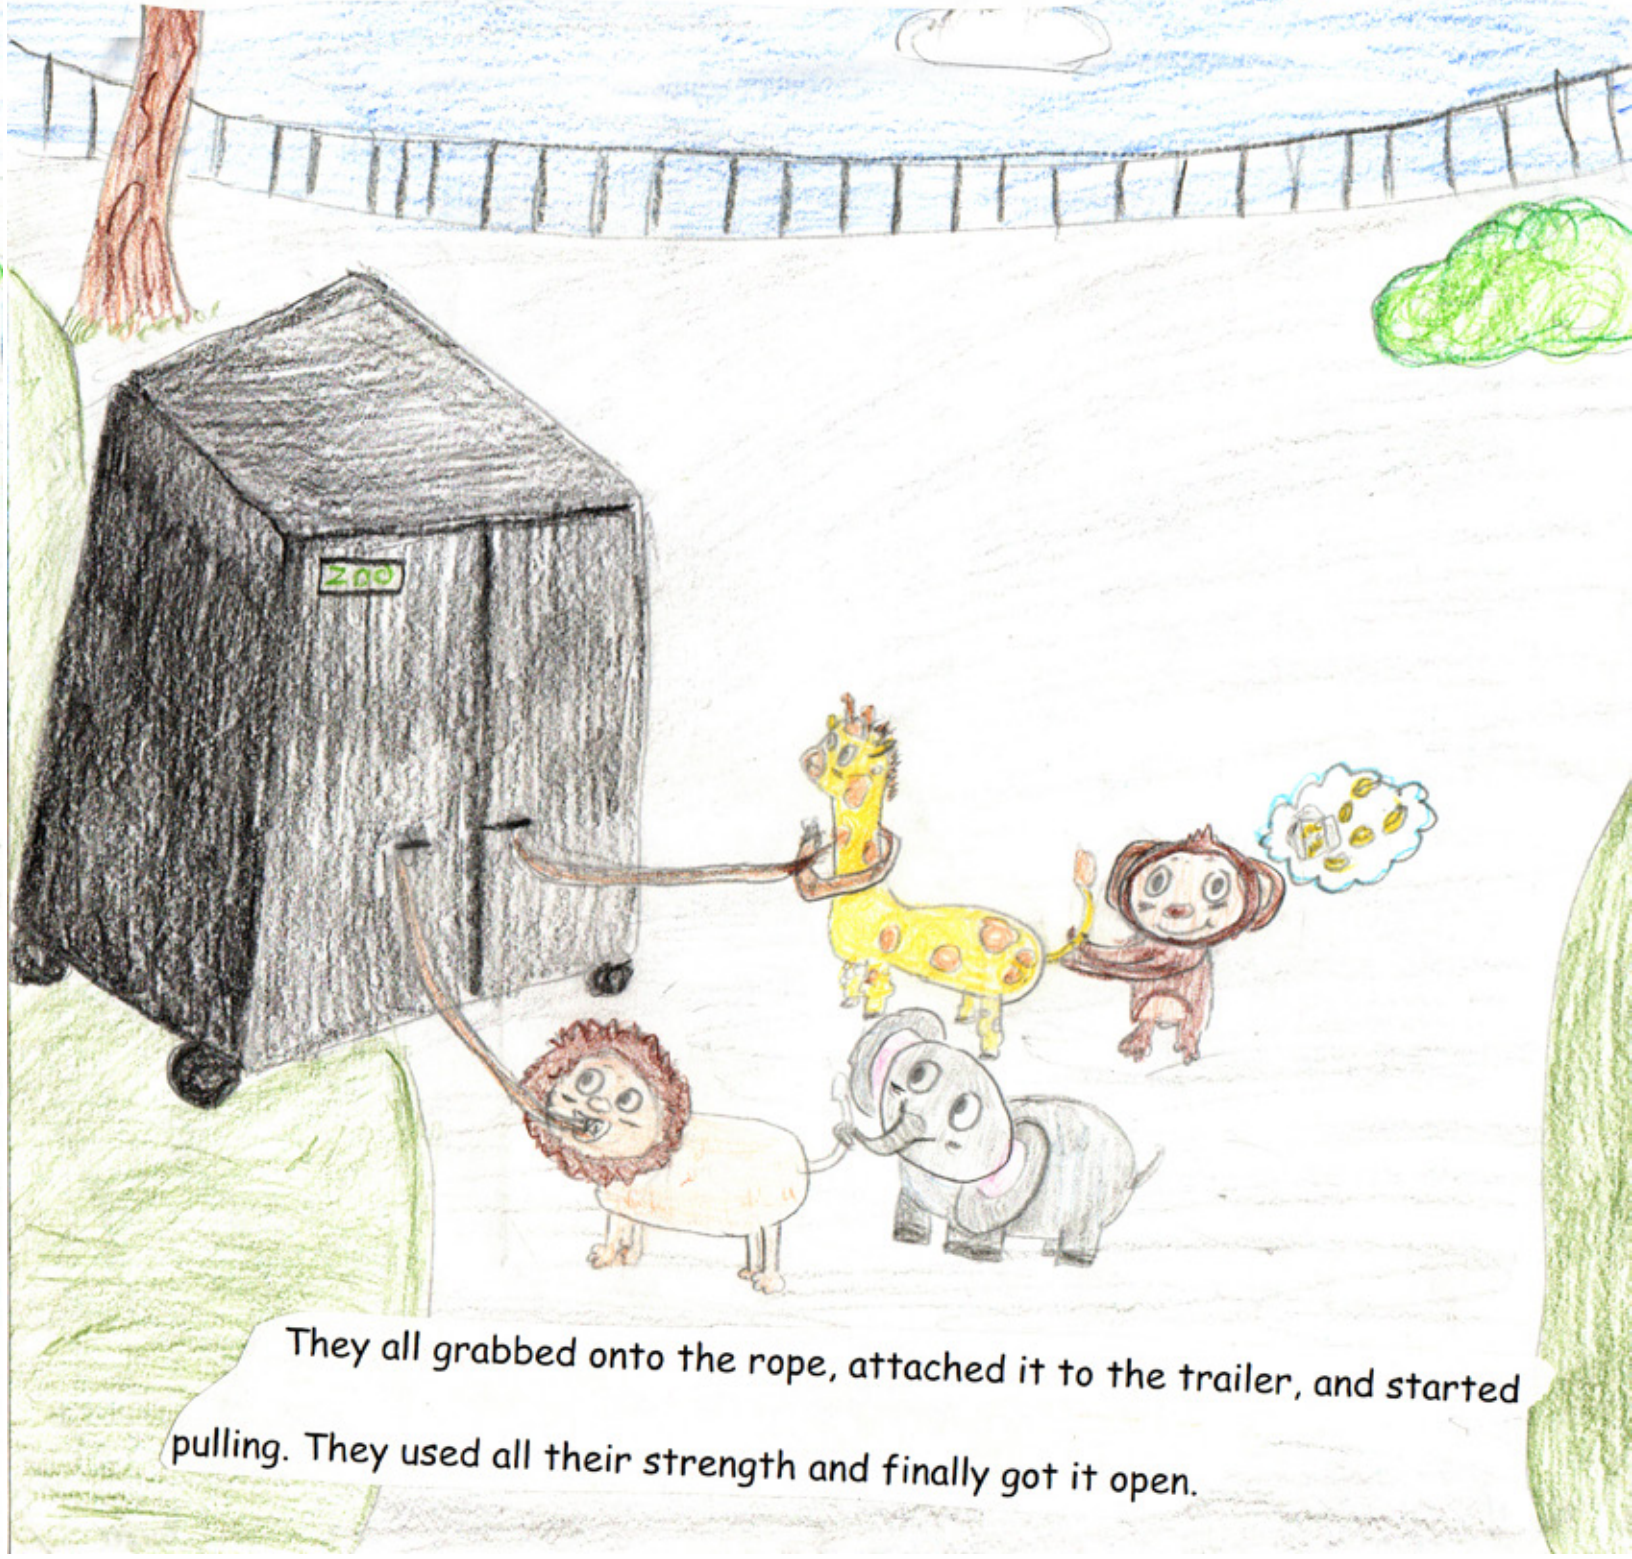

They all rushed over. Everyone looked confused, then Lily asked, "What is it?"

"Maybe it's a big box full of bananas!" George said with an astonished look on his face.

"Maybe we can try to get it opened," said Lily.

They all agreed and started to pull on the doors of the trailer. They were pulling and pulling, but it just wouldn't budge. Finally, they decided to try their final method. They used the rope that Teddy brought.

They all grabbed onto the rope, attached it to the trailer, and started pulling. They used all their strength and finally got it open.

"What's in it?" said Liam. Lily looked inside and saw a gorilla that looked scared and confused. "Who are you?" said George, "I'm Lola," she said with a shy voice.

"Nice to meet you, Lola. These are my friends. Would you like to be our friend too?" asked Teddy.

"I would love to," said Lola.

The new group of friends all ventured back to their cages and hung out every day.

