GENERALLY SPEAKING

I joined a virtual meeting recently to review the programs in this month’s schedule. It’s a meeting I always enjoy – getting a sneak peek at what’s coming up is just as exciting to me now as it was when I started at the station twenty years ago. I inevitably add a few notes to my calendar, making sure I remember to tune in for certain programs that catch my interest. During one clip, however, I made myself chuckle when I said, “Oh, no, no. Not for me.” I made a mental note to miss that program. (For inquiring minds, I’ll just say it involved an incredibly tense moment between a crocodile and a wallaby.)

Rachel Knight,
General Manager

It reminded me of a line I heard attributed to the first general manager of OPT. He told people that the station’s schedule would be diverse by design, and not every program would (or should) appeal to every viewer. According to him, if a viewer never finds something they don’t care for on OPT, we probably aren’t doing a good enough job serving the wide variety of audience members and interests. I couldn’t agree more. With that sentiment in mind, discovering the programs I don’t want to watch pleases me nearly as much as finding the many I do.

Thank you for helping power all the programs on OPT – the ones you knew you would love, the ones that became your surprise favorites, and the ones that simply aren’t for you.

Rachel Knight, General Manager
