After two years in prison, professional con man Alidor Van Praet needs to rebuild the fortune the police seized from him. When he spots 20-year-old Jeremy Peeters’ hacking skills at a convention, he knows that this shy kid is the key to making it happen. The unlikely allies mastermind a plan to hijack the digital highway of money transfers that occur between banks. But as the heist unfolds and events take an unexpected turn, who is really in control?