An Exploration of Trauma and Healing After October 7

This documentary is an intimate exploration of the ramifications of the October 7 Hamas attacks on Israeli survivors and families who lost loved ones. Through encounters with survivors, bereaved families, and their support network, the film traces the emotional and psychological ripples of that day, revealing how ordinary lives were shattered in an instant, and how those left behind are learning to live with loss, fear, and uncertainty. The documentary interweaves these personal narratives with quiet observations of daily life as it slowly resumes, illuminating the complex intersection of trauma, identity, and healing in a nation that has forever changed.
