Nashville PBS's Be My Neighbor Day featuring Daniel Tiger and Lady Elaine!

FOR THE LOVE OF NASHVILLE —AND BEYOND

Becky Magura

President & CEO of Nashville PBS

Thank you to everyone who joined us for Nashville PBS's Be My Neighbor Day!

It was a beautiful day, and such a joy to meet more than 1,500 children and their families, as well as many enthusiastic adults who shared their personal stories about the lasting impact of PBS KIDS and the invaluable role PBS has played in their education and quality of life.

This is what sets Nashville PBS apart from most media outlets. Our mission is to celebrate and connect Nashville and beyond through content and engagement that educates and reflects the communities we serve. We take that mission to heart, and I'm truly grateful to each of you and to our dedicated team for supporting it.

Fundraising Update: You're Making a Difference

Thanks to your incredible support, our fundraising efforts under the Fund Our Future campaign are going strong. The future continues to look bright as we serve our community, our region, our state, and our nation.

Nashville PBS stands strong, despite significant challenges, and you are a big part of that resilience. More than 1,300 of you became new members, and many of our current supporters increased their annual gifts or made additional contributions following the announcement of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) shutdown.

In my decades of work in public television, I never imagined CPB would be dismantled so abruptly, or that federal funding for public media would become such a deeply divisive issue. I often ask myself to what end? The federal budget has not been significantly reduced, and our nation is not more united or better served as a result.

The decision to defund public broadcasting comes at a high cost: to local stations, to the communities we serve, and to the cultural and educational growth of our country. Around the world, successful nations support public media that informs, educates, and connects. That has always been our legacy at Nashville PBS. We are here to bring light, not heat, and we will continue to operate in a nonpartisan way, supported by individuals, businesses, and bipartisan state leadership. We remain hopeful that federal support for local stations will one day return.

A Statewide and National Vision

We're also committing to deeper collaboration across Tennessee. Nashville PBS is working alongside the state's six PBS stations and our public radio partners to explore shared content and services. A recent highlight was our successful three-day broadcast of AmericanaFest – just one example of how we are expanding our impact.

As I begin my service on the national PBS Board of Directors, I'm reminded of our collective responsibility to educate, connect, and protect through public media. In Tennessee, we're already in conversations with state officials about how our broadcast infrastructure can play an even greater role in serving as a primary emergency alert system.

A Personal Note of Gratitude

I've been privileged to enjoy a rewarding career in public television. Thank you to Nic Dugger and the Mid-South Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences for the honor of being inducted into the Silver Circle. It was a night to remember, made even more special by the presence of family, friends, and my son, Max Magura, who gave a touching introduction. I will always cherish that evening.

At the ceremony, I took a moment to acknowledge the dedicated professionals at CPB who have served local public media stations, and our nation, with distinction for decades. My heartfelt thanks to the CPB Board of Directors, to President and CEO Patricia deStacy Harrison, and to the senior leadership team for continuing to serve with integrity and focus during this difficult transition.

Looking Ahead with Purpose

In the coming months, including during the premiere of Ken Burns' upcoming documentary series, THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, you'll continue to see the iconic CPB message that reminds us of the vital role public funding has played in telling America's stories. Ken Burns is a national treasure. His thoughtful work captures the complexity of our history and inspires us to strive for a more perfect union – a goal that only public television could so powerfully support.

This season of gratitude is the perfect time to thank the exceptional team at PBS, along with the Board of Directors and President and CEO Paula Kerger. At a time when strong leadership is more essential than ever, PBS is rising to the challenge. Their ongoing commitment to children and families, to quality journalism, to excellence in science, history, and the arts, and to strengthening local stations, guides us as we reimagine public media for a rapidly changing world.

In Closing

What an incredible team and board we have at Nashville PBS. I'm deeply grateful for their unwavering support and commitment as we navigate these challenging times. We love our community and the people we serve. Like PBS itself, we're not going anywhere except forward.

Thank you. I wish you all the best this holiday season.

Becky

Nashville favorites Ketch Secor, Molly Tuttle, Kathy Mattea and Sierra Hull will also take the stage, bringing a touch of Tennessee to this national celebration.

Together, they will honor the extraordinary artists and storytellers who have made PBS a cultural home for all. Expect live music, heartfelt stories, and a look back at timeless moments from AUSTIN CITY LIMITS, GREAT PERFORMANCES, SESAME STREET, and other iconic PBS programs.

Your support keeps this legacy alive here in Middle Tennessee. Give today at wnpt.org/donate and help Nashville PBS continue to inform, inspire, and unite our community.

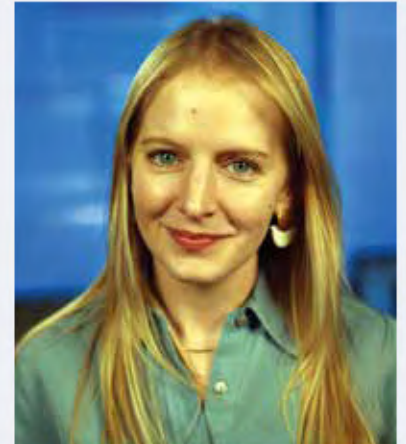

NASHVILLE PBS PROFILE

Meagan Grisolano, Executive Producer & Senior Director of Content

A big part of Megan's job is to provide editorial oversight for all productions and ensures content focuses align with community priorities. She previously worked as the director of communications at Nine PBS in St. Louis, supporting the station in various capacities, including digital production, marketing, business development, and strategic planning. She worked as televised auction co-coordinator at WCTE Central TN PBS in Cookeville, Tennessee, and interned at WTTW during her time as a graduate student at the University of Chicago Booth School of Business.

Before earning an MBA, Megan received a Bachelor of Arts in Economics and Spanish from Vanderbilt University where she ranked 1 of 1,054 students in her graduating class. Outside of public television, Megan was a Fulbright English Teaching Assistant in Madrid, Spain, for two years.

In her free time, Megan produces videos for her YouTube channel (@MEGrisolano) about the cultural differences between Spain and the US and her lived experiences in both countries. The channel has more than 93K subscribers and 23M views.

If you could bring in any new programs or concepts that you have not tested before, but that you are passionate about, what would they be?

I would love to launch a digital-first science series on Nashville PBS. Public media audiences are hungry for engaging science content. I've seen several PBS stations succeed with science programming on platforms like YouTube with Deep Look, Gross Science, Space Time, and Eons, to name a few.

Our viewers are lifelong learners, so a series that explores questions about our minds, bodies, ancestors, and the world around us could thrive on the PBS app and our YouTube channel. We're also fortunate to have many knowledgeable partners at nearby universities and hospitals. I believe we wouldn't have to look far to find exciting research and experts who can break down complex topics in an accessible and compelling way.

What do you feel makes a Nashville PBS program successful? How do you measure success?

Above all, a successful program aligns with our mission: Nashville PBS connects Nashville and beyond with trusted content that reflects, strengthens, and celebrates our community. It also needs to address the issues our viewers have told us matter most, which are arts and culture, education, the environment, and the economy.

Every year, we conduct a Community Survey to hear directly from our audience about their priorities. We also gather feedback through conversations at events, phone calls, emails, and social media engagement.

I tend to be data-driven, so I also track broadcast ratings, digital views, and engagement metrics like likes, comments, and shares. The most valuable thing anyone can give is their time, so when someone chooses to spend it with our content, that's a huge win.

What would hinder you from bringing a new concept to life?

There's no shortage of ideas for new programming from our team and our viewers. What stops us from running with great new ideas are limited resources. We are grateful for the support we get from foundations, corporations, major donors, and "Viewers Like You." That support allows us to produce ten ongoing local series and numerous specials each year. But with a team of just over thirty people, we can't sustainably add much more without growing our funding and capacity.

As we secure new funding, we're able to turn dream projects into reality, creating local content that reflects our region in a way national streaming giants simply can't. I also believe the more local connections and partnerships we have, the more we can accomplish. If we don't know about the incredible work happening in our community, we can't share stories about that work. The more we're able to meet people and grow our network, the more successful we'll be.

What part does the audience/member base play in the programming decisions the station makes?

Our audience plays a central role. As I mentioned, we rely heavily on feedback through our annual survey, direct engagement, and digital analytics. I regularly share performance data with our team, so we're guided by what resonates with viewers. If something's working, we'll do more of it.

That's part of why our most-watched local programs, TENNESSEE CROSSROADS and VOLUNTEER GARDENER, have stayed on air since the late '80s. They consistently deliver value to our audience.

As the media landscape shifts toward on-demand and digital platforms, we're adapting accordingly. More and more people are watching on demand and on digital platforms, so we are making sure to be on as many platforms as we can and to optimize our content.

A great example is TENNESSEE CROSSROADS: JAUNTS, a digital-first series we launched in partnership with local influencers like @nashvillehiddengems and @xplr.nash on Instagram. The series highlights noteworthy local restaurants, shops, and destinations in roughly 90 seconds or less.

At tennesseecrossroads.org/jaunts, viewers can type in any Tennessee destination and our Jant AI will return a curated list of nearby spots, linking to TENNESSEE CROSSROADS segments. It's just one way we're listening to what our audience wants, and building tools to serve them better.

What matters to you? Have your voice heard. Give us your feedback on our Community Survey at wnpt.org/survey, and help shape what comes next for our community.

NASHVILLE PBS ORIGINALS

A WORD ON WORDS

In Season 11, A WORD ON WORDS brings together a remarkable mix of authors whose stories challenge, delight, and inspire. From celebrated voices to bold new perspectives, each conversation reveals how the written word continues to shape who we are.

Ruth Reichl whisks readers to The Paris Novel, a tender exploration of food, love, and transformation. Ruben Reyes expands the imagination with Archive of Unknown Universes, while Julie Clark's The Ghostwriter delivers suspense and surprises. Jessa Crispin questions modern masculinity in What Is Wrong with Men? and Beatriz Williams' Under the Stars sweeps through history with style and heart.

Adam Godfrey's Body of Water dives into grief and renewal, and Ashley Winstead's This Book Will Bury Me examines ambition and mortality. Alexis Okeowo captures resilience in Blessings and Disasters: A Story of Alabama, while Andrew Lawler's A Perfect Frenzy uncovers humanity's restless curiosity.

Carson Faust's If the Dead Belong Here explores memory and loss, and Michael Thomas reflects on family and legacy in The Broken King: A Memoir. Alix Harrow's The Everlasting reimagines love across lifetimes, Rob Franklin's Great Black Hope examines strength in and out of the ring, and Andrew Greer's More than a President reminds us that every story has depth beyond the headlines.

Hal Harder of Moose Creek Media plays a key role in helping Nashville PBS produce this magazine. With a background in PBS, educational publishing, marketing, and advertising, he brings a strong foundation in creating effective communications.

In 2008, when Becky Magura was leading WCTE PBS - years before becoming President and CEO of Nashville PBS - Hal partnered with her to develop a professional, bimonthly magazine and program guide for the station. Despite limited resources, the publication launched successfully in 2010 and, that same year, earned a National Educational Telecommunications Association (NETA) Award.

The magazine's design is unique to Nashville PBS, thanks to Editor Dr. Carolyn Adkerson, but the award-winning model remains the same. The magazine showcases the full range of Nashville PBS's offerings, from local and national programming to community events and digital viewing opportunities. An online version includes links to program trailers and more information. Funding partners and media trades make the membership magazine possible.

Over the past 18 years, Hal has collaborated with three PBS stations to develop their publications, as well as contributing to a variety of other marketing, copywriting and communications projects.

"I'm a lucky guy," Hal said. "I get to work with the positive and genuinely caring people at Nashville PBS to help them shine a light on the amazing work they're doing. It's both fulfilling and fun!"

Operation Space Station

High-Risk Build

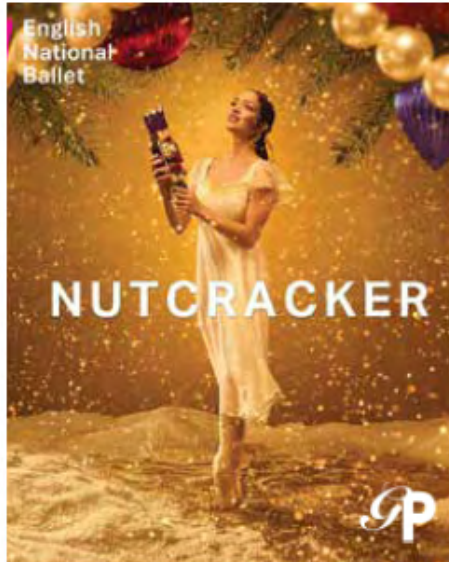

Wed, Nov 5 at 8pm

Witness an unprecedented feat of engineering: the construction of the International Space Station, a habitable space lab hurtling around Earth at 17,000 mph. Every step of this ambitious project unfolds against the backdrop of a merciless vacuum, dangerous radiation, and extreme temperatures. Experience high-stakes drama as astronauts confront life-threatening malfunctions, including a toxic ammonia leak during a critical spacewalk. And see how each time, a combination of quick thinking and nerves of steel help the crew survive and thrive in a hostile environment – a testament to international collaboration and the relentless pursuit of scientific discovery.

Science and Survival

Wed, Nov 12 at 8pm

Imagine a place where more than 280 people have defied Earth's gravity, risking their lives to do science 250 miles above us. Here, on the International Space Station, unexpected challenges are a daily threat, from an astronaut's helmet filling with water on a spacewalk, to the entire station spinning out of control. Witness the ingenuity, courage, and international cooperation required to overcome these life-threatening emergencies. And discover how this unique orbiting laboratory continues to push the boundaries of science, uniting humanity in a shared pursuit of knowledge beyond our planet, even as its own incredible journey approaches its fiery conclusion.

Great Performances

Tiler Peck: Suspending Time (New)

Fri, Nov 7 at 8:30pm

Following a series of life-altering events, including a major injury and a personal loss, New York City Ballet prima ballerina Tiler Peck is forced to reimagine her relationship to dance, to her body, and to herself. Over six years, she fights to return stronger, not just as a prima ballerina, but also as a choreographer and creative force. After Peck returns to the stage, she takes on the toughest creative challenge of her career: choreographing for the New York City Ballet, culminating in debut performances set to a concerto.

Twelfth Night (New)

Fri, Nov 14 at 8:30pm

The Shakespearean comedy of mistaken identity tells the romantic misadventures of twins Sebastian and Viola after they survive a shipwreck, including revenge plots and tricks of love. Directed by Tony Award nominee Saheem Ali, the cast includes Lupita Nyong'o, Junior Nyong'o, Peter Dinklage, Sandra Oh, Jesse Tyler Ferguson and Daphne Rubin-Vega.

The Nutcracker from English National Ballet

Mon, Dec 15 at 8pm

Enjoy Tchaikovsky's holiday classic set in Edwardian-era London. Clara embarks on a fantastical adventure with her enchanted nutcracker featuring over 100 dancers and a magical, dreamlike realm. Choreographed by Aaron S. Watkin and Arielle Smith.

The American Revolution

Sun, Nov 16 - Fri, Nov 21 at 7pm
Encore at 9pm

On the 250th anniversary of the American Revolution, a new film explores how the nation's founding turned the world upside down. Thirteen British colonies along the Atlantic Coast rose in rebellion, won their independence, and established a new form of government that would radically reshape the continent and inspire democratic movements for generations around the globe.

Viewers will experience the Revolutionary War through the memories of those who lived it: from rank-and-file Continental soldiers to military leaders, from civilians to enslaved and free African Americans, from Native warriors to French and Spanish allies.

The American Revolution was many things: a war for independence, a civil war, and a global conflict. It affected millions from Canada to the Caribbean and beyond. Few escaped its reach. At various times, the British Army occupied every major population center in what is now the United States, including New York City, which remained under British control for over seven years.

"The American Revolution is one of the most important events in human history," said Ken Burns. "We went from being subjects to inventing a new concept, citizens, and set in motion democratic revolutions around the globe. As we prepare to celebrate the 250th anniversary of our founding, I'm hopeful that people throughout the country will come together to discuss the importance of this history and to appreciate even more what our ancestors did to secure our liberty and freedoms."

The Great Escaper

Sun, Nov 23 at 8pm

This is the true story of Bernard Jordan (Michael Caine) who made global headlines in the summer of 2014. When the 89-year-old WWII veteran went out wearing a jacket and his war medals, the care home staff thought he was planning to meet friends to reminisce about D-Day and Normandy. Bernie had other plans.

When Bernie didn't return for his tea, the care home notified the police. After checking with taxi and bus operators, neither of whom had seen Jordan that day, police officers were baffled. They should have checked with ferry and train operators, because, driven by love and the memory of fallen comrades, Jordan had hopped on a train to Brighton, and boarded a ferry across the English Channel to France to attend the 70th Anniversary of the D-Day Landings.

That night, a younger veteran called his care home to tell them Bernie was all right. Although his wife (Glenda Jackson) was aware of his travel plans, his unannounced trip caught the world's attention because of a tweet from the police that went viral.

It was a story that captured the imagination of the world as Bernie embodied the defiant, "can-do" spirit of a generation that was fast disappearing. Bernie's adventure, spanning a mere 48 hours, also marked the culmination of his 60-year marriage to Rene. The film celebrates enduring love, but always with an eye to the lessons we might learn from the Greatest Generation.

THE OPEN MIND is a long-running public affairs television program was designed to foster thoughtful discussion and civil discourse on a wide range of topics, including politics, science, education, and culture. Known for its in-depth interviews, the program has a reputation for being intellectually rigorous and respectful, allowing guests to articulate their views without sensationalism or interruption.

Unlike many modern talk shows, THE OPEN MIND avoids combative or polarized debates, focusing instead on informed conversations. Alexander Heffner's calm and probing interview style set the tone for a series that prioritizes listening and understanding over confrontation.

Recent topics include: the retroactivity dilemma in justice reform; the future of the crypto industry; discussions on public safety; missionaries; vigilantes; investigative reports on the Japanese government and corruption; a discussion on electoral reform; the future of American education; and a look at the science of circadian rhythms.

VIEWERS LIKE ME SUPPORT

Hello, I'm Jeremy Tolley. As a kid growing up in Tennessee, some of my earliest memories are of watching public television.

My grandparents introduced me to gardening when I was just a little kid, but as I got older, became a teenager, I discovered this show on public television called Volunteer Gardener.

The show inspired me and it opened my eyes to things that I didn't even know existed.

Fast forward all these years later and I own a market garden and I'm growing food for my community right here in Middle Tennessee.

THANKS & GIVING

How to Turn Your Generosity Into Year-End Tax Savings

As the year quickly draws to a close, we have many reasons to celebrate. Despite funding challenges that often seem overwhelming, Nashville PBS has continued to grow as a station and expand its presence throughout Middle Tennessee and beyond. We've built and strengthened countless community partnerships, expanded our educational and outreach programs, and created impactful local productions.

When you donate to Nashville PBS, you make an investment in our future and in the community we proudly represent and serve. We are committed to sharing unique perspectives and insights so we can promote learning and advance understanding. At the core of our mission is content reflective of our audiences and our nation. Through this work, Nashville PBS can continue to grow as a place where everyone feels welcomed, celebrated, and connected.

None of the work we do happens without the financial support of our dedicated viewers and donors; you play an essential part in our success.

By making a donation to Nashville PBS before December 31, you can contribute to our station while also receiving a tax deduction for the 2025 tax year. This is a great opportunity to support our mission while also maximizing your tax benefits.

For donors aged 70½ or older with a traditional IRA, you can give up to $105,000 directly to our organization as a Qualified Charitable Distribution (QCD) for 2025, which can satisfy your Required Minimum Distribution (RMD) and is not included in your taxable income.

How to give before December 31:

- Give online: Visit our website at wnpt.org to make a quick and secure donation.
- Mail a check: Send your contribution to Nashville PBS at 161 Rains Ave., Nashville, TN 37203.
- Donate appreciated stock: By donating appreciated stock, you can avoid capital gains taxes and deduct the fair market value of the assets. Please contact me directly at mmonoc@wnpt.org or 615-687-9948 to learn more.

Your commitment to the mission and future of Nashville PBS is invaluable, and we are so incredibly grateful for your support.

Wishing you and your loved ones a joyful holiday season,

Marianne Monoc
Chief Development Officer

Reasons To Donate Your Vehicle To Nashville PBS

Donating your vehicle is as easy as pie.

Do you have an old car you no longer drive that's just taking up space in your garage? Or maybe you have a motorcycle that stopped working years ago that you never got around to fixing. Consider donating it to Nashville PBS!

All Types of Vehicles Are Considered

Cars, trucks, trailers, boats, RVs, motorcycles, campers, off-road vehicles, planes, heavy equipment, farm machinery, and most other motorized vehicles. Running or not!

Vehicle Donations Are Tax-Deductible!
